MORE ON MARKET AREAS

In the current newsletter, we continue connecting the Kent State Stark market area dots as we review the sizes of all of the Stark Campus's market areas. We will examine the number of undergraduate students enrolled in an Ohio public higher education institution from each county in our market area and the change in the number of students and in the percent of students from 2010 to 2018 from each county. There are large variations in higher education enrollment by county. Although market sizes in higher education enrollment are shrinking in every county, and therefore, every Kent State Stark market, some are declining far more rapidly and dramatically than others.

As a reminder, in the October issue of Connecting the Dots, we identified the primary, secondary, tertiary, and potential market areas of Kent State University at Stark. Stark County is the primary market area, and Summit County is the secondary market area of the Stark Campus. The tertiary market area includes the border counties of Stark County excluding Summit County and including Portage, Mahoning, Columbiana, Carroll, Tuscarawas, Holmes and Wayne Counties. Medina County and Cuyahoga County were identified as potential, undeveloped market areas of Kent State Stark.

Market Area Changes: Number of Students

Figure 1 displays the 2010 and 2018 number of undergraduate students from a county enrolled in Ohio public institutions of higher education (IHE). It also displays whether the county is part of Kent State University at Stark's primary, secondary, tertiary, or potential market area. With 300 and 495 undergraduate students in 2018, Holmes and Carroll Counties have the least number of undergraduate students enrolled in Ohio public IHEs. Stark and Summit Counties, with 11,871 and 18,151 students in 2018, have the highest number of undergraduates enrolled in Ohio public IHEs.

The figure also displays the counties that have had a sharp decline in the number of undergraduate students enrolled in Ohio public IHEs from 2010 to 2018. Kent State Stark's primary market area, Stark County, with a decline of 6,325, has had the largest decline in the number of students enrolled in Ohio public IHEs. Summit County has lost 4,835 undergraduates and Mahoning has lost 3,974 students from 2010 to 2018. The number of undergraduate students enrolled in Ohio public IHEs from Columbiana and Tuscarawas has declined by more than 1,000 from 2010 to 2018.

Market Area Changes: Percent of Students

The percentage decline from 2010 to 2018 in the number of undergraduate students enrolled in Ohio public higher education from each county is displayed in Figure 2. Carroll County has had the greatest decline of 52% from 2010 to 2018, and the majority of the remaining counties, including Stark, Mahoning, Columbiana, Tuscarawas, Holmes, and Wayne, have had the number of students from their counties enrolling in Ohio public IHEs declining by more than 30%, ranging from a 30% decrease in Wayne County to a 38% decline in Mahoning County. Only three counties in the Kent State Stark market area have had declines of less than 30% in the number of students from that county enrolling in Ohio public IHEs: Summit County, which is the Stark Campus's secondary market, declined by 21%; Portage County, part of Kent State Stark's tertiary market, declined by 16%; and Medina County, a potential market area of Kent State Stark, fell by only 7% from 2010 to 2018.

Although Summit County is Kent State Stark's secondary market area, it is the largest overall market and is declining far less rapidly in the number of undergraduates enrolling in Ohio public IHEs than Stark County. Medina, a potential market area, has the third highest number of undergraduate students enrolling in Ohio public IHEs in 2018 of the ten counties and has the lowest percent decline in the number of students enrolling in Ohio public IHEs.

(Not displayed is Cuyahoga County, which is a potential market area of the Stark Campus. Cuyahoga County had 59,088 undergraduates enrolled in Ohio public IHEs in 2010 and 39,978 in 2018, which represents a decline of 19,110 students or 32.3%.)
