Welcome to the Kent State University Staff Hiring Process Procedures and Uniform Selection Guide. This guide, developed by the Division of Human Resources, is specifically designed to offer hiring officials, supervisors and others associated with the hiring process, a resourceful, reference tool for the university and staff.

The intent of this guide is to act as a supplement to the consultative partnership that will be established between the user and the Human Resources Talent Management team, inclusive of the HR Compensation, Talent Acquisition and Training departments. The guide will be offered in both a hardcopy and online format. The guide will be updated as appropriate through periodic communiqués and a downloadable version will always be available at the Kent State University human resources webpage at http://www.kent.edu/hr

The hiring of new employees to Kent State University is a critical function in the continued growth of the university. Its success and ultimate impact upon the university makes understanding the hiring process a key function of all university hiring officials, hiring managers, supervisors and the staff that support them in this endeavor.

First Point of Contact:

The Human Resources Talent Acquisition Department is your first point of contact. He or she is a resource for you in:

- Pre-hire needs analysis
- Determination of a position title or need to create a new one.
- Assisting with the Position Request Authorization (PRA) workflow.
- Creation of a market analysis report for the proposed position.
- Creating an effective advertising and marketing strategy.
- Developing a sound, candidate sourcing plan.
- Establishing your access to the Online Applicant Tracking System.
- Creating effective applicant and candidate evaluation strategies and processes.
- Assembling and orientating a successful Search Committee.
- Ensuring adherence to University Policies.
- Ensuring compliance with all federal and state laws.

For purposes of this guide, the start of the hiring process will begin at the point the decision is made within a department/division to either fill a vacant position or create a new one. Ultimately, long-range staffing forecasting is the most proficient means of maintaining a successfully staffed unit or division.

Through a consultative partnership with the HR Talent Acquisition and Compensation departments, a hiring official can gain insight into market trends for hiring and salary benchmarks, as well as, be offered guidance throughout the process. For purposes of this guide we will discuss the following categories of positions at Kent State University:

- Unclassified staff: Unclassified employees whose primary duties are administrative and professional but are not faculty. Unclassified positions are subject to Ohio Revised Code 3342-6-05. Most unclassified employees are exempt from the overtime provisions of the FLSA. Appointments of unclassified staff are further subject to guidelines set forth in section 3342-6-04.

- Classified staff: Employees appointed to classified civil service are subject to the terms and conditions established under section 124 of the Ohio Revised Code. At Kent State University, all classified employees are treated as non-exempt per the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). Appointments of classified staff are subject to guidelines set forth in section 3342-6-04.

- Unclassified hourly staff: Employees who do similar work to classified staff, but are not subject to the provisions established for classified employees under section 124 of the Ohio Revised Code. These employees are treated as non-exempt per FLSA. The appointing authority for unclassified hourly employees is the same as for classified employees. Appointments of unclassified hourly staff are subject to guidelines set forth in section 3342-6-07. Unclassified hourly employees are commonly referred to as program assistants.

Several instructional sessions are available for hiring officials, hiring managers and supervisors that can be very helpful while engaging the hiring process. Among these are:

- Conducting Effective Searches - This training course teaches participants how to conduct effective searches according to affirmative action and equal opportunity guidelines.

- Online Applicant Tracking/Hiring Manager - This training is specific to hiring managers and their authorized support staff. We will take you through step-by-step instructions on how you will use the online applicant system to post positions, review applications and resumes, review applicants’ responses to questions and much more.

- Fundamentals of Supervision - The goal of the Fundamentals of Supervision (FOS) series is to provide supervisors with the tools they need to effectively guide and oversee the work of others. Each of the six courses in the series (see list below) is designed as a stand-alone program. However, these courses apply consistent concepts and values that are designed to complement one another. Employees who complete the entire series will receive a certificate of completion. You can visit http://www.kent.edu/hr/Training/Fundamentals-of-Supervision.cfm for more information.
A full course catalog is available at http://www.kent.edu/hr/training/ at the HR Training webpage.

Within the following document, an outline will be created to demonstrate how an employee can be hired at Kent State University. A hiring official must complete a PRA (Position Request Authorization form) through the Banner workflow and obtain all levels of budget approval and include the associated attachments specific to the situation.

Should a position be new to the university, the hiring official should first complete a Position Description Questionnaire (PDQ) (classified PDQ or unclassified PDQ) and forward it to HR Compensation for review. This will allow the position to be properly reviewed and placed within the appropriate grade; be assigned the appropriate duties; and have the proper requisites developed.

The Compensation unit responsibilities include developing, implementing, and maintaining pay policies and programs for unrepresented classified and unclassified employees. They can be contacted at (330) 672-3107 or via email at compensation@kent.edu.
A carefully designed and implemented hiring plan provides an effective means for attracting and selecting the best available candidate for a job. Avoid these mistakes by following the university’s approved system. It is comprehensive, effective and professional.

1. Develop a hiring game plan. Define the job and work with HR to develop the selection criteria. Why are you hiring? Are there other ways to get the work done without adding staff? Is the workload temporary or permanent? What is the position profile? What is the job description? What are the selection criteria? What are the sources for potential candidates? Who’s responsible for the hiring decision?

2. Determine the output. The approved HR hiring system must be used to select people who meet the requirements for the job at Kent State University. Carefully reviewing the candidate’s personal attributes and skills, is critical. You should hire for attitude and train for skills, not the reverse.

3. Define the job. Carefully establish the technical requirements of the job, behavioral requirements and performance expectations. This will be accomplished with guidance of HR Compensation and Talent Acquisition. Once defined in detail, these three areas provide a guide for evaluating every candidate. This should include a position profile (the mission, performance standards, specifications and conditions of the job) as well as the job description (the detailed list of tasks to be performed).

4. Know when to hire. Develop a hiring needs analysis (see below) that will determine when you need to hire a new employee. Why do we need more staff? What will happen if the position is not filled? What are the costs and benefits of hiring now? How else can the work be done? What will happen if the work is not done?

5. Develop a recruiting plan. How do you attract good people to Kent State University and make them aware of the opening? What are the selling features of the job? HR Talent Acquisition will guide you through this process.

6. Collect the application. It’s important to ensure that you review all the qualified candidates. HR will filter out those that definitely don’t meet minimum qualifications. Make sure all candidates have easy access to informed people within your department or division to get prompt and accurate answers to their questions during the interview process. You’ll also want to collect as much of the paperwork as possible in person (to give you another way of getting a better read on the candidate). HR will treat all candidates like customers so they receive a positive impression of quality and professionalism within our institution.

7. Screen the candidates. After the application is received, it should be reviewed to determine whether the candidate meets the minimum standards established for the position. This is accomplished through the online applicant system. HR takes the lead on this. If no candidates emerge that meet your qualifications, don’t lower your standards—look harder. If a candidate doesn’t survive the cut, let them know politely and immediately.

8. Interview and interview some more. After all background checks, reference checks and employment verifications are completed, HR or the hiring official will talk in-depth to the finalists to assess the behavior, attitude and general character of the candidate. It’s important to go through a standard set of questions, but it is acceptable to use unconventional questions to elicit a more profound understanding of how the candidate thinks. Such questions should always be behavioral based and you should always know the type of answer you are looking for. A pointless question is a waste of time. The interview process should be conducted over time and with different levels of people within the institution to get a full and complete picture of the candidate.

One of the most if not THE MOST critical decision made in the hiring process is determining the classification/title of the position to be filled. Rather than simply replacing a vacancy with the same title as before, it is important to examine the needs of the unit and ascertain what work needs to be accomplished. This will ensure that applicants will have the skills sets needed to successfully perform the job.

Through consultation with Hiring Manager and Compensation, the job duties and responsibilities are discussed and defined.

There are several resources available to help determine what these may be. Established job description and classification specifications can be found on the HR website at http://hrservices.kent.edu/comp/content.asp

If position is being created with responsibilities that are new to the university then a Position Description Questionnaire (PDQ) should be completed. A discussion with a Compensation Staff member will help determine which version of the form should be completed.

If a PDQ is submitted, then either a job description for an unclassified job or a classification specification for a classified job will be created from information provided. This document will provide the basis for the job posting, skills assessments, training needs, and performance reviews.

The Compensation Unit will assign the new title to a pay grade.

In addition to determining the title and pay grade, the Hiring Manager and Compensation will discuss the workload of the unit to establish what type of position is needed such as full time vs. part time. Anything less than 40 hours in a workweek is determined to be part time.

For unclassified positions, an assignment of less than 12 months may be considered appropriate (i.e., 9 or 10 months).
Paying people fairly is good for business and employee morale. If you underpay, employees will eventually look for a better offer. Overpay, and your budget and profitability will suffer. It is also money that you could be spending elsewhere.

The compensation staff will partner with you to determine the value of your job and ensure you make a fair offer to your finalist.

The initial phase of this process is a market analysis report created by the Compensation Office. The Hiring Manager and a Compensation Staff Member must determine what the relevant market is. The market for a Director level of position could be national in scope while an individual contributor professional position might be more local in nature. Likewise, certain jobs will be restricted to certain industries, while other jobs will cut across several industries.

The compensation staff will be able to generate a report for the Hiring Manager that takes all of these factors about the job into consideration.

The report will provide a hiring range for the job.

This amount should then be used when the PRA is created to determine the amount of money needed to fund the position. The Hiring Manager may also need to take into consideration any financial restrictions.

Keep in mind that once a finalist has been determined, the compensation staff will further assist the Hiring Manager by looking at the specific qualification of the candidate and making a more specific salary recommendation for that particular candidate.
The Banner Position Request Authorization (PRA) was created in 2007 and launched live in February of that same year. To begin, a department designee must complete a Position Request Authorization workflow located within the university portal, under the “My Action Items” tab, within the “Workflow & Utilities” channel. The ability to complete and originate a PRA is accessible to anyone within a department. Approval is subject to departmental hierarchy established by the university’s Banner system. Should a hierarchy approval chain change, please contact the HR Talent Acquisition unit.

To prepare for successful completion of a PRA, an originator must know of the following information after accessing the below entry link:

- Department Name
- Supervisor’s Name and Number
- Position number
- Index Number
- Labor Distribution information
- Salary Amount

After accessing the workflow, it will require the user to furnish information about the position, funding for the position, budget information and whether a waiver is being requested. An instructional manual for both an “originator” and an “approver” is available through the forms library, but also attached within this Hiring Guide.
There are many helpful links that have been established to assist users in the completion of the PRA workflow. Many of these relate to the funding tabs which for a new or infrequent user could be an area of question. The following are links that can be valuable:

- Banner Crosswalk: http://finacctlookup.uis.kent.edu/ - This link allows the user to compare legacy system values to new Banner values.

- Position Control Numbers: Log into Flashline, under the “My Action Items” tab, within the “Finance Reports” channel and click on Position Control - This link allows the user to access all position control numbers, which are critical in creating a PRA for an existing position.

- Labor Distribution Numbers: Log into Flashline, under the “My Action Items” tab, within the “Finance Reports” channel and click on Labor Distribution - This link allow the user to access labor distribution numbers, which are critical in creating a PRA for an existing position.

- Month-End Financial Reports: http://financial-info.kent.edu/ - This link allows the user to access financial reports for a department that is looking to hire. It can be helpful in the budget decisions for salary for a new or existing position.

- Management Level Listing: http://www.kent.edu/hr/forms/misc/upload/management-level-listing-for-pra-s.pdf - This link is valuable in determining the management level for those who supervise others.
Chapter 6

Development of Applicable Job Assessments

Classified:

- Some classifications have established testing requirements (e.g., secretary and account clerk series).
- Others classifications do have testing requirements; however, assessments can be performed. The difference between testing requirements and assessments are testing requirements need to have a passing score and an assessment is to check the abilities or level of an individual.
- The Hiring Manager should partner with Talent Acquisition to identify pertinent competencies and determine available assessments to be given.
- Assessments may include: written/computer generated exams, behavioral-based interview questions, and a work sample/hands-on assessment.
- Assessments are typically administered only to the top ten candidates that have met the minimum qualifications of the classification.

Unclassified

- Only assessments are given to determine the skill level of an applicant (as opposed to a cutoff score required to pass a test).
- The Hiring Manager should partner with Talent Acquisition to identify pertinent competencies and determine available assessments to be given.
- On newer versions of unclassified job descriptions, competencies that should be assessed have already been identified with an asterisk.
- Assessments may include: written/computer generated exams, behavioral-based interview questions, and a work sample/hands-on assessment.
- An assessment is typically administered after you have screened candidates to ensure they meet the minimum qualifications. You may do it prior to or at the same as the first round of interviews. The Hiring Manager should consult with TA to determine when it would be most suitable in the process.
The mission of the Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action is to ensure equal access to employment and educational opportunities in support of the university's commitment to equal opportunity, affirmative action, and diversity.

It is important to discuss your department's affirmative action plan and goals prior to engaging in the hiring process so as to ensure your goals are met. Per policy 3342-6-02.1, the University shall adopt an affirmative action plan and it shall be maintained and implemented, pursuant to paragraph (B) of rule 3342-6-02 of the Administrative Code, and the equal opportunity policy promulgated by the board by resolution of October 4, 1979.

Per policy 3342-6-02.1(B)(3), the office of affirmative action in the division of human resources and under supervision of the vice president for human resources shall be the principal administrative office for effective implementation of this affirmative action plan throughout the university.

The Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action provides:

- Information, consultation, and guidance to the Kent State community on affirmative action, equal opportunity, harassment prevention, discrimination, and disability matters
- Training and workshops for students, faculty, and staff on these issues
- Confidential counseling on harassment and discrimination issues and concerns
- A mechanism for handling complaints of harassment and discrimination
- Oversight of and support for the university's compliance with equal opportunity and affirmative action laws and regulations

Engagement with the Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action is important in the hiring process. The office plays a key role in conducting required training for potential search committee representatives and can offer collaborative guidance, in tandem with the HR - Talent Acquisition office for hiring strategies.

Following policy 3342-6-03(A)(2), it will be the responsibility of those engaged in the hiring process to ensure that there shall be no unlawful discrimination against any employee or applicant for employment because of age, race, color, religion, gender, sexual orientation, national origin, disability, or identity as a veteran with a disability or veteran of the Vietnam era. Such policy shall apply to, but not necessarily be limited to, the following: employment, upgrading, demotion or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. This policy shall be applicable to all campuses and units of the university. This policy also shall apply with reference to discrimination on the basis of age insofar as required by law.

To assist a hiring official in the formation of a search committee, a guide has been developed for use as a reference guide. This guide has been developed by the Employment unit of the Division of Human Resources for search committees and other hiring managers responsible for recruitment and selection. Its intent is to provide guidance and assistance to those involved in the hiring process. University policies governing Search Committees are 3342-6-02.101 and 3342-6-06.

Kent State University is committed to delivering quality teaching, research, service, administrative and professional support to advance its mission. The search effort advances the university’s mission by attracting and selecting the best available faculty and administrative/professional staff members.

The goal of the search committee is to recruit a diverse and talented pool of applicants and recommend the best candidates to become members of the university community.

This guide supports the recruitment efforts of the search committee by providing information on planning, advertising and sourcing, and many other important efforts of a successful search. Additionally, the guide provides information related to the process of evaluating, interviewing and reference checking to ensure that searches are legally sound.

The role of the search committee is the key to the attainment of the university’s diversity goals and compliance with the university’s affirmative action policies. The guide will serve to heighten the awareness and the importance that recruitment activities and decisions have upon the university’s affirmative action/equal opportunity and diversity goals. The information included in the guide conforms with the key affirmative action policies and procedures and reflects our commitment to fully comply with both the spirit and intent of federal and state regulations related to non-discrimination practices.

Relevant policies:

3342-6-02 (Equal Opportunity)
- Academic and student programs
- Employment
- “Law of the Land”
- Prohibits unlawful discrimination
  - Rest of policies address discrimination under Affirmative Action
  - This is the prevailing policy
- Mandates the Affirmative Action Plan

3342-6-02.100 (Affirmative Action)
- Required per Executive Order as recipient of government dollars
- States the commitment to workforce analysis
- Sets the employment practices and policies
- Holds management responsible for implementation

3342-6-02.101 (Job Communication)
- Defines appropriate recruiting and sourcing activity
  - Links back to affirmative action plan
- Guides – or restricts – those involved in selection process

3342-6-02.102 Waivers
- Guides the decision for approving waiver
Composition of Search Committees:

Although there are no legal requirements governing the composition of search committees, it is recommend that search committees be representative of the university community's diversity as it relates to race, gender and tenure status. The diversity of the search committee reduces the possibility of a discrimination charge and acts as an affirmative action safeguard for individual committee members who, in their official capacity, may be liable for their decisions.

Good faith is also demonstrated by the university when efforts are made to insure that minority and female members of search committees have the same standing as other committee members. This effort at balancing the committee serves to promote equity in committee deliberations. The size of the committee may vary, but experience indicates that committees should be no smaller than three nor larger than 10 members. Many professional and academic associations exist on campus that can be resources in identifying diverse members for a search committee including the Pan-African Faculty and Staff Association (PAFSA) and the Diversity Advisory Council (DAC).

Responsibility of Search Committees and Hiring Officials:

The main responsibilities of hiring officials are:

- To source and recruit qualified candidates.
- To comply with federal and state equal employment opportunity laws and university policies.
- To formulate clear guidelines, procedures, and criteria for regulating the performance of faculty and staff duties while they are serving on search committees or acting as hiring officials.
- To demonstrate good faith efforts in carrying out their tasks. This is the affirmative action component of equal employment opportunity. The search committee takes positive steps to provide equal opportunity for those categories of persons who may have been discriminated against in the past and who may continue to suffer the effects of that discrimination.

The main responsibilities of search committees:

- To source and recruit qualified candidates.
- To comply with federal and state equal employment opportunity laws and university policies.
- To recommend to the hiring authority the best applicants to become a member of the university without discrimination because of race, religion, color, national origin, disability, veteran status, and sex or age except where sex or age is a bona fide occupational qualification.
- To demonstrate good faith efforts in carrying out their tasks. This is the affirmative action component of equal employment opportunity. The search committee takes positive steps to provide equal opportunity for those categories of persons who may have been discriminated against in the past and who may continue to suffer the effects of that discrimination.

In the performance of their official duties, search committees and hiring officials may be race, gender, or ethnic conscious, if there is reason to believe that qualified minorities or females have been subject to the exclusionary effects of past employment practices or if there is current underutilization of minorities or women in a department, college or organizational unit. Advisement in this area can be sought by the Office of Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity.

When discussing potential candidates for positions, if the committee desires to protect the confidentiality of its deliberations, a member of the committee may request of the chair that the committee meet in executive session. Remember no notes (which can be subpoenaed) should be taken in executive session. However, in executive session the committee can protect the confidentiality of its deliberations for a public records request.
AFSCME, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, is the largest union for workers in the public service with 1.4 million members nationwide. AFSCME organizes for social and economic justice in the workplace and through political action and legislative advocacy. AFSCME represents a diverse group of service and health care workers in the public and private sectors including nurses, EMTs, bus drivers, child care providers, custodians and librarians. At Kent State University, a select group of classified positions are represented by AFSCME through their Council 8, Local 153.

Based upon the collective bargaining agreement, many unique elements exist that make the hiring and selection process for these represented employees different than others hired at the university.

All hiring for AFSCME positions at Kent State University are overseen by the Manager, Labor Relations. The hiring process is guided through specific articles of the collective bargaining agreement, in particular, but not limited to:

- Article 14 (Job Posting)
- Article 17 (Layoff and Recall)
- Article 19 (Hours of Work)
- Article 53 (Job Enrichment and Trades Training Programs)

It is important to consult with the HR - Talent Acquisition team and the Manager, Labor Relations so as to develop an effective search for candidates, while adhering to the collective bargaining agreement.

The collective bargaining agreements can be accessed online at http://www.kent.edu/hr/labor/upload/afscme-collective-bargaining-agreement.pdf, inclusive of the AFSCME agreement. In addition, a more comprehensive explanation of hiring procedures can be found in Appendix 4.
To post a position at Kent State University it is required that all positions be posted on the university’s online applicant tracking website, https://jobs.kent.edu. The following university policies pertain to the hiring and recruitment of personnel to Kent State University are inclusive of, but not limited to:

- 3342-6-02.101 (Operational procedures and regulations regarding job communication)
- 3342-6-07.5 (Administrative policy regarding unclassified hourly employees)
- 3342-6-07.4 (Administrative policy and procedures regarding the hourly pay schedule for classified civil service staff who are not in a recognized bargaining unit)
- 3342-6-05 (University policy regarding employment of unclassified administrative officers and staff personnel)
- 3342-6-07.1 (Administrative policy and procedures regarding the university administrative and professional staff pay plan)

The HR - Talent Acquisition unit manages the university’s online applicant tracking system. Instruction is offered in the form of Hiring Manager Training. Please contact Talent Acquisition for training information.

Once access to the University Online Applicant Tracking has been granted, users can Login by opening a web browser and type in the following address: https://jobs.kent.edu/hr

Enter your username and password to log in. The username is the first part of your Kent State email address (e.g. lsmith2). Omit the second half of your email address (e.g. @kent.edu). In addition, enter a password after you have completed the username field. Use your Flashline password. In the event you do not have a Flashline password, enter the password you use to access Outlook Exchange. If you have any difficulty accessing the system, please contact the Helpdesk at 330.672.HELP.
Posting Specific Questions:
An Employment Specialist will align all pre-screening requirement questions on the job description and/or class specification consulting with the Hiring Manager on the optional questions regarding unique characteristics (preferences) of the position. The position specific questions are based on education and experience requirement as stated in the job description and/or class specification. Additional questions can include requirements such as, license, certification, special training, etc., which is also stated in the job description and/or class specification.

Once within the system, you will be able to search for all positions connected with your department. It is at this time you can search all applicants who have applied and select those which you would like to interview.
After the successful completion of a Position Request Authorization (PRA) has been achieved and the position is queued to be posted on the university’s online applicant tracking system, a consultation process begins with a HR - Talent Acquisition representative to discuss marketing your opportunity throughout the area. This could mean:

- Locally
- Regionally
- Nationally
- Internationally

The HR - Talent Acquisition team has a myriad of recruitment venues in the form of:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Types</th>
<th>Advantages</th>
</tr>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Print advertising</td>
<td>Large circulation; still respected amongst job seekers</td>
</tr>
<tr>

Any or all of these can be used. Through the process of talent acquisition, Kent State University recruiting specialists use a variety of approaches to locate top-tier talent for hiring managers throughout the university. The first and foremost method used is to find someone within another institution of higher education or an organization who may or may not have the appropriate skills and use this initial contact to network to others both within the company, and the northeast Ohio community. Through the utilization of a vast network of recruitment resources, the employment team is constantly reading mass mailing meeting announcements, obtaining professional society membership lists, browsing Internet discussion groups, attending career fairs and identifying new recruitment venues to source as wide and diverse an applicant pool as possible.
The process of posting a position is a simple one that consists of (5) five steps:

1. Seek final approval of a PRA
2. Contact HR - Talent Acquisition to discuss the particular parameters of the posting (preferences, department-specific skills, etc)
3. Collaborate with HR - Talent Acquisition for the creation of an objective evaluation methodology that will identify a talented and diverse pool of candidates. This can include some of the following:
   a. Overall structured interview format (who and when)
   b. Telephone interviews
   c. Work samples
   d. Peer assessment
   e. Assessments
   f. Position specific testing (classified positions)
   g. Behavioral-based interviews
4. Consult with HR - Talent Acquisition regarding advertising.
5. Partner with HR - Talent Acquisition to effectively market and source this opportunity within the following way:
   a. Traditional print advertising
   b. Online websites
   c. Online social networks
   d. Informational or Professional Development sites
   e. Recruiting blogs

Under the University's decentralized budget model, departments have two options for placing employment ads:

1. Direct placement of employment ads in journals, publications, websites, job boards, and other media
2. Placing ads through the HR Talent Acquisition Unit

Both methods will provide results and differ only in how they reflect individual preferences. The freedom to act does have responsibilities and accountabilities for departments regardless of which method is used. The department is accountable for ensuring that proper funds exist in the department budget to pay for any cost advertising. Payment of bills for employment advertising is also the direct responsibility of the department. Tracking recruitment and advertising efforts for mandated institutional reporting still requires departments to keep careful, written records on the entire search process, including the advertising portion.

Employment offers the following employment services to departments:

- Assistance with search process and search materials
- Developing pools of applicants for temporary classified employment
- Assistance with developing recruitment and advertising strategies
- Writing and placing ads
A key element in the hiring process is that of actually reviewing a pool of applicants. It is important to note that there are a myriad of federal and state laws, University policies and practices that govern this part of the process. Among these are the Uniform Guidelines on Employee Selection Procedures.

These guidelines are applied by:

- The Department of Labor, and the contract compliance agencies until the transfer of authority contemplated by the President’s Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978, in the administration and enforcement of Executive Order 11246, as amended by Executive Order 11375 (hereinafter “Executive Order 11246”)

- The Civil Service Commission and other Federal agencies subject to section 717 of Title VII

- The Civil Service Commission in exercising its responsibilities toward State and local governments under section 208(b)(1) of the Intergovernmental-Personnel Act

- The Department of Justice in exercising its responsibilities under Federal law

- The Office of Revenue Sharing of the Department of the Treasury under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, as amended; and by any other Federal agency which adopts them.

The selection of applicants and the ultimate evaluation of their skills as they pertain to the position in which you are attempting to fill is further governed by a series of federal laws:

- Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) of 1967. The Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) of 1967 prohibits the discrimination in employment on the basis of age for individuals 40 years of age or greater. An employer cannot discriminate in making decisions regarding: Hiring; Firing; Promotion; Layoff; Compensation; Benefits; Job Assignments; Training; or Other terms and conditions of employment. A link is located at http://www.kent.edu/hr/aa/adea.cfm

- Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990 states that an employer cannot discriminate against employees with disabilities in relation to: Application/Hiring; Advancement; Termination; Training; or Compensation/Benefits.. A link is located at http://www.eeoc.gov/laws/types/disability.cfm

- Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) sets minimum hourly wage, overtime pay, equal pay, and record keeping and child labor standards for employees who are covered by the act. Kent State University employees are covered by this act. This act also addresses which employees are exempt from specific provisions of the act, such as overtime pay. Administration and enforcement of the FLSA and related statutes are the responsibility of the Department of Labor. Within the Department of Labor, the Wage and Hour Division has authority for the FLSA. This division issues rules, regulations, and interpretations under the act and conducts inspections and investigations to determine compliance. A link is located at http://www.kent.edu/hr/employment/flsa.cfm

- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 states that an employer cannot discriminate on the basis of: Race; Color; Gender; Religion; or National Origin. An employer cannot discriminate in making decision regarding: Hiring/Firing; Training; Discipline; Compensation/Benefits; Classification; or other terms and conditions of employment. In addition to these categories, Kent State University's policy regarding unlawful discrimination and harassment (Policy 3342-6-03) also includes sexual orientation, disability, age or identity as a disabled veteran or veteran of the Vietnam era as part of its protected class. A link is located at http://www.eeoc.gov/policy/vii.html.

- Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA). States that it is unlawful to employ illegal immigrants and applies to all employers.

- Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA). Places limitations on employers who use credit ratings as a basis for selection and hiring and provides that an employer may not obtain a credit report on a job applicant or employee without first obtaining written permission.

The HR Talent Acquisition unit is available to assist in developing questions used to determine an applicant’s experience level and whether or not they meet the minimum requirements for the position. These initial questions are created within the online applicant tracking system. As is similarly done in the posting process, a set of criteria can be developed with the assistance of HR, to develop an evaluation matrix to then create a list of those applicants whom you would like to interview.

The selection process should be a consistent and documentable one. The overall scope of the process should include the following:

- Having an applicant complete a Kent State University application using the university’s Online Applicant Tracking system at https://jobs.kent.edu

- If applicable, an applicant should be given any pre-employment testing. This could be in the form of civil service testing to certify them for a particular position; or other university approved evaluation methods for pre-employment; all of which must be coordinated through Human Resources.

- Telephone interviewing when applicable to furnish the candidate with the scope of the opportunity and to determine if there is a general understanding of the open position for which they have applied or to pre-qualify the applicant’s qualifications.

- On campus interview that allows the candidate to meet key personnel within the department and/or the Search Committee.
- Comprehensive reference check and if applicable, background checks (see Chapter 12) to verify work history. It is also at this time that other physical exams, if applicable, are conducted.

- Evaluation of the candidate pool and finalist list utilizing material feedback from all of the above. This should always be done in an objective and consistent manner so as to offer each candidate a fair review and consideration.

This process should always be discussed with the HR - Talent Acquisition unit. This consultative approach with an Employment Specialist will reduce the risk of legal issues and will ensure proper adherence to federal and state laws, as well as, university policy.

It is important to remember the following elements when launching your applicant evaluation process:

- Track all contact with an applicant. The robust university, Online Applicant Tracking system will store the applicant’s application, resume and any other related documents indefinitely.

- Document your review methodology inclusive of interview questions and evaluation format.

- Do not issue any exam to an applicant unless it has been reviewed and agreed upon by Human Resources, and said exam must be given to every candidate.

- Check with the HR - Talent Acquisition unit and request a search within the Online Applicant Tracking system’s “Profile” function to identify any applicants who have expressed general interest in Kent State University.

As a hiring manager, the responsibility for hiring staff is an important one. You must determine how to tell whether someone is a qualified candidate and how you can minimize the risk of making a bad recruitment decision. To maximize your chances of securing the best candidate, it is important for all hiring managers to properly prepare for and conduct an interview in a meaningful way. One must realize that an interview is a two way street – a unique opportunity for both candidate and Kent State University to get to know as much as possible about one another. It is just as important for you to be prepared and to put your best effort forward in an interview as it is for the candidate – particularly in a candidate-driven market.

Many bad recruitment decisions tend to arise as a result of behaviors demonstrated by employees rather than due to their technical ability. It makes sense therefore to focus on eliciting as much information as possible from the candidate about how they will behave and perform in a particular environment and circumstance, what habits they possess, what motivates and demotivates them and how they respond to particular management styles. These issues are behavioral issues and an effective way of gathering this information is by asking behavioral-based interview questions, examples of which are described below.

Firstly, it is important to ask yourself what are the bare-essential requirements for the job. Think about what specific skills the candidate will need to possess in order to perform the required tasks, what kind of culture is present in your department and what kind of behaviors fit well within this culture. Make a list of these. Spend some time familiarizing yourself with the candidate’s resume. Write down any questions you have about issues arising from the resume or highlight areas of interest that you would like to learn more about. Get a sense for the candidate’s background so that you don’t waste time asking questions such as “When did you complete your degree?” or “Give me five words to describe you?” Think about what you want to achieve and learn from this interview.

Interviews will vary based upon the differences of the positions for which you are recruiting. The initial interview should last between 30 – 120 minutes. The time will depend greatly on how many people are a part of the interview and how many candidate may be arranged for an interview in a particular day.

Greet the candidate warmly and make sure they are seated in a comfortable position. Think about where the interview should take place – make sure the space is one that you think accurately portrays Kent State University in the way you want it to be portrayed. As well, try to avoid interviewing from behind your desk. Step out from behind it and arrange the seating such that you and the candidate are equals. Explain why you have invited them to meet with you and how the interview will proceed. It is also a good idea to tell the candidate something of your own background and what your role is within Kent State University. Remember, if the candidate feels comfortable you are more likely to embark on an open and candid discussion and learn as much as possible about their background and experiences.

In general an interview will be constructed as such:

- Part 1: A brief overview should be given to the candidate about the structure of the interview; its process; and timeline. This initial interaction should be used to discuss any questions that may be associated with the candidate’s application or to obtain any missing documents needed for the interview. Let the candidate know what you would like to gain from the meeting. This is also an appropriate time to become familiar with the applicant and why it is they are interested in Kent State University.

- Part 2: If after briefly discussing the candidate’s interest in the university and after clarification and verification of the candidate’s application, the belief is that this candidate is qualified for the position, time should be devoted to a full explanation of the position. Responsibilities, and measures of success should be discussed in detail with the candidate. Discuss the particulars of the role, the reason why the vacancy has arisen and how it fits within Kent State University. Keep in mind that an interview is “interactive”, so invite the candidate to ask questions. This will ensure that an accurate understanding of what will be expected in this position. Ask the candidate about their status in their present job and what is prompting them to consider alternative job opportunities at this point in their career.

- Part 3: During this phase, the candidate should be evaluated based upon their competencies and skills as they relate to the open position for which they are being considered. Behavioral based interview questions are key in allowing the candidate to demonstrate their understanding of how their skills and experiences relate to the position. Moreover, it will allow the candidate to offer applicable examples of past experiences and the documented successes or failures they have acquired relatable to the position.

Questions to Ask:

Professionalism / Self Control (to determine if the candidate can maintain a mature, problem solving attitude while dealing with conflict, rejection or deadlines)

- Tell me about a time when you had to cope with strict deadlines or time demands. Give me an example.
- Give me an example of a time at work when you had to deal with unreasonable expectations placed on you.
- When have you had to cope with an angry or hostile colleague or client? How did you cope with the situation?
- Sooner or later we all deal with criticism in relation to our work. If it has happened to you, how did you respond to such criticism and describe the context in which it arose. Tell me about a high stress situation when you were required to keep a happy and positive attitude.
- Tell me about a time when you had too many things to do and how you prioritized your tasks.
- What is your typical way of dealing with conflict?

Analytical problem solving (to determine if the candidate is able to use a systematic approach in solving problems)

- Give me a specific example of a time when you used good judgment and logic to solve a problem.
- Give me an example of a time when you used your fact-finding skills to solve a problem.
- Describe a time when you anticipated potential problems and developed preventative measures (whether alone or as part of a team).

Decisiveness (to determine if the candidate is able to make decisions quickly and take action)

- Describe a time when you were under pressure to make an immediate decision. Did you take action immediately or were you more deliberate?
- At times it is important to be hard headed about decisions you make, particularly when others don’t like it. Give me an example of a time when you stuck by a decision even though it was under attack by others.
- Describe a situation in which you had to draw a conclusion quickly and take speedy action.

Spoken communication (to determine if the candidate can present information clearly, influence or persuade others through oral presentation and listen well)

- Tell me about a time when you had to communicate under difficult circumstances.
- Tell me about a time when you used your communication skills to influence someone’s opinion.
• Careful listening and effective communication go hand in hand. Tell me about a time when your ability to listen helped you to communicate better.
• What types of experiences have you had in delivering oral presentations?
• Tell me about a time when you had to deal with an upset or angry client.
• Describe a situation in which you were able to use persuasion to successfully convince someone to see things your way.

Motivation of others (to determine if the candidate is able to create positive energy in both individuals and groups)

• Give an example of a time when your positive attitude caused others to be motivated or energized.
• Give an example of something you did which helped build enthusiasm in others.
• Tell me about a time you used competition, recognition or reward to encourage and motivate others.

Commitment to task (Is the candidate able to start and persist with courses of action?)

• Give an example of a time in which you found it necessary to dedicate long hours to a job.
• How do you keep yourself motivated when working alone?
• Tell me about a time when you had to work hard to reach a particular goal – be specific about what you achieved.
• Tell me about a time when you had to go above and beyond the call of duty in order to get a job done.

Interaction (Can the candidate communicate effectively with others?)

• Describe a time when you were successful in dealing with a colleague because you built a trusting relationship.
• Tell me about a time when you were able to successfully deal with another person even when that individual may not have personally liked you or vice versa.
• Tell me about a time when you had to deliver information or news to a colleague which you knew they were not going to be happy to hear. Please be specific on how you delivered this information.

Closing question

• Why should I hire you over other candidates?
• What motivates you about your career?

These questions have been developed to assist in finding out more about the candidate with whom you are meeting. These questions are designed to get candidates to share specific experiences in their work life that might illustrate the skills you are searching for in a candidate. Do not assume that just because you are interested in the candidate that they are interested in Kent State University. Many hiring managers tend to underestimate the importance of this, or, ignore it all together. It is vitally important to market the virtues of Kent State University as an “Employer of Choice” and to explain in detail the “total compensation” package offered by the university.

To recruit effectively, you must be able to articulate the unique benefits of Kent State University consistently and persuasively. To do this, it is essential to identify the candidate’s trigger points – in other words, what makes them ‘motivated’. Some of the important factors candidates consider when selecting a potential employer include reputation of the organization, financial stability, reputation of the employees, a visible career path, proper resources, evidence of work-life balance, salary and benefits and knowledge that the work they do will be interesting, stimulating and challenging.

Ask early on in the interview process what is important to them in an employer. One way in which to promote Kent State University to the candidate is to highlight what you have achieved in your time with the university and what you are proud of. Be prepared to address what makes your department special. Discuss the career paths of previous successful recruits in your department. Candidates in turn will want to ask questions concerning community involvement, training, performance reviews, promotion and salary issues and management style. You will need to approach these questions with clarity and confidence.

Next Steps:

Slow response time can cause hiring managers to lose their choice of talent. It is here that you can gain an advantage over other employers seeking talent by moving quickly to make a hiring decision. For this we suggest making the next decision (whether that is a second interview or verbal offer subject to reference checking) within seven to ten days. Indecisiveness and delay may send a negative message to the candidate. If you are perceived as lacking in focus then the candidate may lose enthusiasm for the role. If you know and feel comfortable articulating what the next stage is then tell the candidate. Otherwise ask the candidate to liaise with a HR Talent Acquisition consultant.

Continue to coordinate the process with HR Talent Acquisition. Make notes following the interview and give your feedback to them as soon after the interview as possible. If there is issues that concern you or you would like something explored in more detail then discuss this with Human Resources. They have useful tools at this point that may help you. They will also be able to advise you on what an appropriate next step should be.

Finally, once a verbal offer has been made by either Human Resources (classified or unclassified) or the hiring manager (unclassified), you should immediately send a letter confirming the terms and asking the candidate to indicate acceptance by signing the letter of employment. This seals the arrangement and adds a formality to the process.

In addition, collaborating with HR Talent Acquisition is critical in expediting the hiring process and ensuring policy and legal compliance.

A friendly candidate packet with include:

Applicant data is divided into categories by columns listed across the top. The first category lists the applicants who have applied to the posting. Additional information is also provided on this screen, including the application date, status, etc.
Each time a candidate is interviewed, you must change their status online. Eventually, after interviewing is complete, a hiring manager will move each candidate they have interviewed into a “finalist” status.

Next, it will be necessary to complete the online recruitment profile to outline efforts made on diversity outreach and recruitment for your particular position. Affirmative Action completes the information in the top section of the Recruitment Profile. They provide Unit EEO availability/incumbency data and Affirmative Action recommendation for hire based on whether there is under representation of women and/or minorities. Required information is denoted with an asterisk.
For almost any firm in the U.S., the direct cost associated with labor is either the first or second largest line item in a budget; this includes revenues spent for pay, benefits, recruiting and training. If firms add in the cost of managing and dealing with employees, the figure is even greater. In a study published in 2003, CFO Research Services found that companies spend about 36 percent of their revenues on "human capital." That figure was even higher in some industries, such as financial services or others. Yet many employers spend more time and effort choosing a copier or deciding between competing brands of laptops than they do in selecting employee.

Safe Hiring is aimed at helping hiring managers decide who NOT to hire. It is an essential function that supplements the process of identifying, recruiting, attracting, and retaining top performers. Human assets are typically the single largest line item in our university budget. Hence employees should not be selected based upon subjective criteria and interviews. Checking job or employment references is time-consuming and many hiring managers, despite recent legislation, refuse to offer more than dates of employment, salary history and job title. Secondly, if you are not careful, each reference check can turn into a friendly chat during which you do not obtain the information you need to make an objective decision about hiring your candidate. As with most processes, a standard reference checking format is useful. You can easily compare candidates and ensure you are asking the "right" questions to make an educated decision before offering the applicant a job with Kent State University.

All reference checks for classified personnel will be conducted by Human Resources. Although, for unclassified candidates, references can be conducted by the search committee or hiring official, it is still recommended that Human Resources conduct these in their entirety. Final copies of said references must be given to HR for review. If reference checks are conducted for an unclassified candidate by the hiring official, the following are elements to keep in mind:

- Convey to the reference that their name has been given to you with the permission of the candidate
- State the intent of the call; a quick overview of the position for which the candidate is being considered

The following is a sample format that is acceptable via Human Resources:

Telephone Reference Check Form

Applicant’s Name

Company Contacted

1. When did the applicant work for your company? From ________ To ________
2. What was the applicant’s position/title?
3. What information can you give concerning:
   - Quality of work
   - Attendance
4. Did this person get along well with others? Yes ______ No ______
5. Why did he/she leave your company?
6. Is he/she eligible for rehire with your company? Yes ______ No ______
   If not, why not?

The hiring process for both unclassified and classified necessitates that candidates and eventual new hires receive appropriate paperwork to complete. Some paperwork is university-related, while others are mandated by the state and federal government.

At the point a candidate is made job offer for employment with Kent State University, one of the initial documents to be sent out is an offer letter, otherwise known as an “appointment letter”. The following are such letters: Unclassified Letter of Appointment and Unclassified Staff Employment Agreement. In the case of classified hires, this is sent out to the new hire by HR - Talent Acquisition. For Unclassified new hires, the hiring manager should work with Talent Acquisition to complete the Unclassified Staff Employment Agreement / offer letter. (Appendix C & F). All forms can be found in the HR Forms Library at http://www.kent.edu/hr/forms/index.cfm.

To assist in the hiring process, a guide entitled “Getting Started with your Employment Process" that navigates a new hire through paperwork requiring their attention. The guide highlights the following forms that need to be completed during the hiring process:

- Unclassified Employment Agreement
- Classified Letter of Appointment (a.k.a the Offer Letter)
- Unclassified Letter of Appointment (a.k.a the Offer Letter)
- Declaration Regarding Material Assistance/Non-assistance to a Terrorist Organization form (DMA).
- Ohio Ethics Law copies
- Federal I-9 Form
- Statement Concerning Your Employment in a Job Not Covered by Social Security form.

The guide is helpful for both the new hire as well as the hiring official ensuring that all appropriate paperwork is completed, thus allowing for a smooth on-boarding beginning.

None of the above paperwork is to be modified in any way. Consistency is key to ensure that each candidate receives the proper information so as to make an educated decision whether or not to become a part of Kent State University. In addition, it is highly recommended that the aforementioned forms are not downloaded and used in an on-going basis. Rather, accessing the forms library is the best way to ensure that you are viewing the most current version of each piece of paperwork.
The post select tab was established in 2006 as a replacement to the Personnel Action Form (PAF) for FT Faculty, all Unclassified and all Classified new hires. The tab must be completed to allow a candidate to become a "new hire". The information shown below is eventually entered into the university's Banner system and a new employee profile is created.

All of the fields associated with the Post Select Tab are critical for beginning a new assignment at KSU. Some of these are listed here.
Within previous chapters of this guide we outlined important paperwork related to the job offer, such as letters of appointment, unclassified employment agreements and other federal forms needed prior to the hire.

After a candidate is offered a position and accepts the Kent State University job offer, several steps need to be completed in on-boarding this new hire to the university.

Once hired, candidates will be required to visit the NewHire website where they will be able to register tax information, personal contact information and more at the university’s employee self service portal located at www.kent.edu.

Once there, login using their assigned university FLASHLINE ID and PASSWORD.

They will then have access to a NEWHIRE tab within the portal and will have access, if eligible, to the NewHireBenefits. Once there, they can evaluate the costs associated with their benefit selections available to them; learn more about the Ohio State Retirement System and other investment options.

Newly hired employees will receive instruction from HR as to how to access the NewHire site. As a hiring official or manager, you will also receive notification via email reminding you that your new employee must visit the NewHire site so as to begin their entrance to the Kent State University Banner system. It will allow them to obtain a parking pass, flashcard, email and other critical resources. (see Appendix F).

At the time of the new employee’s start date, they will begin to receive notifications, as will their supervisor, for the need to visit the NewHireBenefits site. From the time they begin their employment, they will have only thirty-one (31) days to select their benefits, should they choose to obtain them from Kent State University.

Orientation / Training:

To assist in the process of acclimating a newly hired employee to the Kent State University environment, Human Resources has developed a series of training that will be critical to the success of an employee. Among these is the Bi-Weekly New Hire Orientation to make an employee’s transition to Kent State University smooth. At this new hire orientation; one will receive a wealth of information - from employee benefits, services and resources, to insurance plan options available to Kent State University employees.

Online Registration

Upcoming Education and Training Events

A commitment to learning is expected of all employees at Kent State University. This information is meant to help you find learning solutions that meet your needs.

The university provides a wide variety of opportunities to increase your knowledge and skills. There is something for everyone ... from new employees to experienced university personnel.
